

Bishop Hickey Praises Butler For Louvain Aid

Home From Rome Conference, Tells of Restoration Work Being Done by U. S. at the Belgian University

Rode Last Dublin Train

Gave Spiritual Comfort to Man Who Tried to Kill Self Aboard Cedric

The Right Rev. William A. Hickey, Roman Catholic Bishop of Providence, who had been to the Eucharistic Conference in Rome, returned yesterday from Queenstown on the White Star liner Cedric with words of praise for Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, for his energy and interest in restoring the library of the University of Louvain, which was razed in the war by German shell fire.

While passing through Belgium on his way to Ireland from Rome Bishop Hickey was told by Butler, who is chairman of the national committee of the United States for the reconstruction of the University of Louvain, that the work of restoration, he said, was deeply felt by the Belgians who expressed confidence that Americans would complete in creditable fashion the big task they had undertaken.

The rebuilding of the library is under the direction of Dr. Butler, who is chairman of the national committee of the United States for the reconstruction of the University of Louvain. A fund of $1,000,000 is being raised by American colleges and universities for the purpose. Bishop Hickey spoke highly of the preliminary work of restoration, saying that anything which is headed by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler is bound to succeed.

Monignor P. A. Foley, chancellor of the diocese of Providence, saw the Bishop on his return from Rome. He said that the Bishop had been very much interested in the restoration of the University of Louvain, and that he had been very much interested in the restoration of the University of Louvain, and that he had been very much interested in the restoration of the University of Louvain.

On Friday the bishop and Monsignor Foley were called to the second cabin of the Cedric, where they were met by Monsignor P. A. Foley, who was suffering from a severe attack of the flu, and who was unable to get out of bed.

Bishop Hickey, who was accompanied by Monsignor Foley, was called to the second cabin of the Cedric, where they were met by Monsignor P. A. Foley, who was suffering from a severe attack of the flu, and who was unable to get out of bed.

Bishop Hickey, who was accompanied by Monsignor Foley, was called to the second cabin of the Cedric, where they were met by Monsignor P. A. Foley, who was suffering from a severe attack of the flu, and who was unable to get out of bed.

Bishop Hickey, who was accompanied by Monsignor Foley, was called to the second cabin of the Cedric, where they were met by Monsignor P. A. Foley, who was suffering from a severe attack of the flu, and who was unable to get out of bed.

Bishop Hickey, who was accompanied by Monsignor Foley, was called to the second cabin of the Cedric, where they were met by Monsignor P. A. Foley, who was suffering from a severe attack of the flu, and who was unable to get out of bed.

Bishop Hickey, who was accompanied by Monsignor Foley, was called to the second cabin of the Cedric, where they were met by Monsignor P. A. Foley, who was suffering from a severe attack of the flu, and who was unable to get out of bed.

Bishop Hickey, who was accompanied by Monsignor Foley, was called to the second cabin of the Cedric, where they were met by Monsignor P. A. Foley, who was suffering from a severe attack of the flu, and who was unable to get out of bed.

Bishop Hickey, who was accompanied by Monsignor Foley, was called to the second cabin of the Cedric, where they were met by Monsignor P. A. Foley, who was suffering from a severe attack of the flu, and who was unable to get out of bed.

Bishop Hickey, who was accompanied by Monsignor Foley, was called to the second cabin of the Cedric, where they were met by Monsignor P. A. Foley, who was suffering from a severe attack of the flu, and who was unable to get out of bed.

Bishop Hickey, who was accompanied by Monsignor Foley, was called to the second cabin of the Cedric, where they were met by Monsignor P. A. Foley, who was suffering from a severe attack of the flu, and who was unable to get out of bed.

Bishop Hickey, who was accompanied by Monsignor Foley, was called to the second cabin of the Cedric, where they were met by Monsignor P. A. Foley, who was suffering from a severe attack of the flu, and who was unable to get out of bed.

Bishop Hickey, who was accompanied by Monsignor Foley, was called to the second cabin of the Cedric, where they were met by Monsignor P. A. Foley, who was suffering from a severe attack of the flu, and who was unable to get out of bed.

Bishop Hickey, who was accompanied by Monsignor Foley, was called to the second cabin of the Cedric, where they were met by Monsignor P. A. Foley, who was suffering from a severe attack of the flu, and who was unable to get out of bed.

Bishop Hickey, who was accompanied by Monsignor Foley, was called to the second cabin of the Cedric, where they were met by Monsignor P. A. Foley, who was suffering from a severe attack of the flu, and who was unable to get out of bed.

Bishop Hickey, who was accompanied by Monsignor Foley, was called to the second cabin of the Cedric, where they were met by Monsignor P. A. Foley, who was suffering from a severe attack of the flu, and who was unable to get out of bed.

Bishop Hickey, who was accompanied by Monsignor Foley, was called to the second cabin of the Cedric, where they were met by Monsignor P. A. Foley, who was suffering from a severe attack of the flu, and who was unable to get out of bed.

Bishop Hickey, who was accompanied by Monsignor Foley, was called to the second cabin of the Cedric, where they were met by Monsignor P. A. Foley, who was suffering from a severe attack of the flu, and who was unable to get out of bed.

Bishop Hickey, who was accompanied by Monsignor Foley, was called to the second cabin of the Cedric, where they were met by Monsignor P. A. Foley, who was suffering from a severe attack of the flu, and who was unable to get out of bed.

Bishop Hickey, who was accompanied by Monsignor Foley, was called to the second cabin of the Cedric, where they were met by Monsignor P. A. Foley, who was suffering from a severe attack of the flu, and who was unable to get out of bed.

Bishop Hickey, who was accompanied by Monsignor Foley, was called to the second cabin of the Cedric, where they were met by Monsignor P. A. Foley, who was suffering from a severe attack of the flu, and who was unable to get out of bed.

Bishop Hickey, who was accompanied by Monsignor Foley, was called to the second cabin of the Cedric, where they were met by Monsignor P. A. Foley, who was suffering from a severe attack of the flu, and who was unable to get out of bed.

Bishop Hickey, who was accompanied by Monsignor Foley, was called to the second cabin of the Cedric, where they were met by Monsignor P. A. Foley, who was suffering from a severe attack of the flu, and who was unable to get out of bed.

Bishop Hickey, who was accompanied by Monsignor Foley, was called to the second cabin of the Cedric, where they were met by Monsignor P. A. Foley, who was suffering from a severe attack of the flu, and who was unable to get out of bed.

Bishop Hickey, who was accompanied by Monsignor Foley, was called to the second cabin of the Cedric, where they were met by Monsignor P. A. Foley, who was suffering from a severe attack of the flu, and who was unable to get out of bed.

Bishop Hickey, who was accompanied by Monsignor Foley, was called to the second cabin of the Cedric, where they were met by Monsignor P. A. Foley, who was suffering from a severe attack of the flu, and who was unable to get out of bed.

Bishop Hickey, who was accompanied by Monsignor Foley, was called to the second cabin of the Cedric, where they were met by Monsignor P. A. Foley, who was suffering from a severe attack of the flu, and who was unable to get out of bed.

Bishop Hickey, who was accompanied by Monsignor Foley, was called to the second cabin of the Cedric, where they were met by Monsignor P. A. Foley, who was suffering from a severe attack of the flu, and who was unable to get out of bed.

Bishop Hickey, who was accompanied by Monsignor Foley, was called to the second cabin of the Cedric, where they were met by Monsignor P. A. Foley, who was suffering from a severe attack of the flu, and who was unable to get out of bed.

Boys Almost Smother Girl Under a Rug

Two youthful admirers called on five-year-old Edith Rosenstein, of 67 Main Street, Lodi, N. J., yesterday and threw a rug over her, laughing heartily at her struggles to free herself from its heavy folds.

When they had removed the rug they removed their smiles, and also ran for help, for the little girl was unconscious. A physician who revived her said she almost had been smothered to death.

Mother Denies Boy Was Taken With Her Consent

Declares Supposed Kidnap of Barik Youngster Had Been Warned to Remain Away

Mrs. Anna Caponi, mother of nine-year-old Theodore Barik, who is taken to have been kidnapped and taken to a farm at Beaver Creek by Otto Preussler, a globe trotter, and sometimes a chief, denied yesterday that she had given permission for the boy to be taken away.

Preussler is in jail in default of $10,000 bail. Theodore is in the care of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. Preussler has said that he took the boy away for a vacation and with his mother's consent.

With an infant in her arms and another on the floor at her feet, Mrs. Barik said yesterday that Preussler had taken the boy away before she had time to say anything. She said he had taken him to Coney Island for two days then, and that for another two days Theodore had been with Preussler in furnished rooms.

Forty-fourth Street near Fourth Avenue. She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

She told Theodore, she said, not to go with Preussler again, and that she had told the chief when he had asked her whether she might take the boy to the country that she did not want him to take the boy anywhere. The day before school closed Preussler found the boy on the streets and took him, it is charged, to the farm.

Schutte Expects Reprieve on Letter Calling Son Slayer

Connecticut Governor and New York Newspaper Get Epistles Purporting to Explain Family's Murder

Special Dispatch to The Tribune

HARTFORD, Conn., July 10.—Council for Emil Schutte, former storekeeper at Haddam, who has been sentenced to be hanged July 21, expect Governor Lake to issue the reprieve for which they have asked him on the strength of new evidence contained in letters received by the Governor and by a New York newspaper.

The writer of the letters asserts that Schutte's son, Julius, who was the principal witness against his father at the trial for the murder of Joseph Ball and his family, killed the Ball alone and had his father arrested for the crime when he refused to give up $2,500 which Julius wanted to invest in a moonshine still.

Some doubt is thrown on the statement of facts in the letters, both of which are to the same effect, by reason of the fact that Julius was only fourteen years old in December, 1915, when the Ball family was killed, and when he was only about six weeks old when he refused to give up $2,500 which Julius wanted to invest in a moonshine still.

Letter Bears Train Postmark

The letter to the newspaper, which bore the railway postoffice cancellation of a train which leaves Pittsfield, Mass., at 6:21 a. m. and reaches the Grand Central Station in New York at 11:27 a. m., was mailed July 6. It follows:

"To Whom It May Concern:

"This confession of blackmail is to prevent the murder of an innocent man by the Governor of Connecticut.

"We made moonshine whisky near Shalleville for a few friends. Lawyers told us it is not unlawful because Connecticut refuses to indorse prohibition. Julius Schutte wanted to join us for the big money in it. We needed $2,500 to make it a success. He said he could get it from his father. If he did not come across we would 'frame' him with aid of Chief Hurley by first accusing him of some trivial offense. If that did not fetch the money we would next accuse him of killing his father, and if that failed we would accuse him of killing the Ball family—father, mother and boy.

Sore at Tight-Wad Habit

"We asked Julius what evidence we could use to frighten his father. He said there was none except his statement. His father was sore and tired of his tight-wad habit. They wanted pleasure and his money would bring it.

"Julius told us he alone knew about the killings, he alone shot the boy, as he testified and he also shot the father and mother using both rifle and shotgun after setting fire to their shack in the night with kindlings he had brought to a nearby field. The fire was to destroy all evidence.

"We intended to make this confession at the trial but at the last minute, judges and Hurley. If guaranteed from punishment, we will testify in full and prove just what Julius told us for it is the law that will hang a man on false testimony of a murderer who wants his father killed. It puts a premium on murder for a son to swear away his father's life with a lie for money after six years silence."

"JOHN, DOUG, BOYS."

Two Held Responsible in Slaying of Brother-in-Law

Coroner Finds They Shot Business Partner; Saloonkeeper Blamed for Chum's Death

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 10.—Frank and Augustus Splanis, of Stamford, were held criminally responsible for the killing of their brother-in-law, Ignatius Montagnino, on July 3, by Coroner Phelan today, and the decision is referred to the prosecuting authorities.

The evidence quoted in the finding shows that Montagnino and Augustus Splanis had been business partners for a year and there had been litigation between them. On the evening of July 3 Montagnino, who had gone by, was called back by the Splanis to talk over matters. He carried a revolver in his pocket. While Frank held Montagnino Augustus is said to have killed his brother-in-law with this weapon.

The coroner held James Briggs, a saloonkeeper of Greenwich, criminally responsible for shooting and killing his friend, Arthur Doran, in the saloon on Sunday, July 2. Briggs carelessly handled a loaded revolver while intoxicated. Doran was his chum.

Dumbwaiter Robber Uses Old Trick With Success

Prisoner Confesses He Got Away With Grocery Change Ruse Several Times

Irving Barish, twenty-eight years old, of 508 East 140th Street, was arrested last night charged with grand larceny and is said to have admitted having been responsible for a series of dumbwaiter robberies.

Barish, who was arrested last night, was charged with grand larceny and is said to have admitted having been responsible for a series of dumbwaiter robberies.

Barish, who was arrested last night, was charged with grand larceny and is said to have admitted having been responsible for a series of dumbwaiter robberies.

Barish, who was arrested last night, was charged with grand larceny and is said to have admitted having been responsible for a series of dumbwaiter robberies.

Barish, who was arrested last night, was charged with grand larceny and is said to have admitted having been responsible for a series of dumbwaiter robberies.

Barish, who was arrested last night, was charged with grand larceny and is said to have admitted having been responsible for a series of dumbwaiter robberies.

Barish, who was arrested last night, was charged with grand larceny and is said to have admitted having been responsible for a series of dumbwaiter robberies.

Barish, who was arrested last night, was charged with grand larceny and is said to have admitted having been responsible for a series of dumbwaiter robberies.

Barish, who was arrested last night, was charged with grand larceny and is said to have admitted having been responsible for a series of dumbwaiter robberies.

Barish, who was arrested last night, was charged with grand larceny and is said to have admitted having been responsible for a series of dumbwaiter robberies.

Barish, who was arrested last night, was charged with grand larceny and is said to have admitted having been responsible for a series of dumbwaiter robberies.

Barish, who was arrested last night, was charged with grand larceny and is said to have admitted having been responsible for a series of dumbwaiter robberies.

Barish, who was arrested last night, was charged with grand larceny and is said to have admitted having been responsible for a series of dumbwaiter robberies.

Barish, who was arrested last night, was charged with grand larceny and is said to have admitted having been responsible for a series of dumbwaiter robberies.

Barish, who was arrested last night, was charged with grand larceny and is said to have admitted having been responsible for a series of dumbwaiter robberies.

having been responsible for a half a dozen or more dumbwaiter robberies. His scheme is said to have been old fashioned but successful. He would order groceries, if it is alleged, and ask that change of $10 or $20 be sent with them on delivery. He would then remove the groceries and the change and would become indignant at any suggestion that he had failed to put his own money on the dumbwaiter.

Patrolman Darcy, of the Alexander Avenue police station, heard him making arrangements last night in a grocery store for change to be sent with his order. Darcy had been advised to look out for some one of Barish's description. Barish is said to have $7.50 from one delivery boy, $17.70 from another and $2.70 from another, all in the same way.

Man and Wife Attacked By Band in Doctor's Home

Husband in Serious Condition in Birmingham Hospital; Receive Threatening Letters

Special Dispatch to The Tribune

BIRMINGHAM, July 10.—J. M. Boutwell is in a serious condition at a local hospital and his wife is slightly injured following an attack upon them today by a band of men at the residence of a local physician where they were visiting. Mr. and Mrs. Boutwell received anonymous letters demanding that they leave the city. The physician was away when the attack was made.

With a blunt instrument and his wife showed evidence of having been choked, police who investigated the case declared. Mrs. Boutwell said she and her husband had been in Birmingham during the last six months, and which culminated in an attack upon Dr. J. D. Dowling, city health officer, about a month ago.

Two Held in $20,000 Bail For Hold-Up in Hallway

Negroes Arrested When They Tried to Redeem Missing Railway Ticket

Duncan Cooper, of 129 West 142d Street, and Simmie Dudley, 137 West 131st Street, negroes, were held in $10,000 bail each last night by Magistrate Smith in Night court for their alleged attack on Arthur Holbrook, of Detroit, Mich., on the night of July 4.

Holbrook, who is one of the district managers for the Lind Air Company of the highway, was waylaid and robbed in the hallway of 129 West 142d Street, where four negroes. They beat him and took $125, his watch and chain, his ring, his stick pin, his ticket to Chicago and two baggage checks.

Next day after Holbrook had informed the police and notified the ticket redemption office of the New York Central Railroad of the loss of his ticket, the two defendants presented themselves with tickets to Chicago, asked for it and were released. The clerk called a policeman.

Holbrook was able to identify his law that will hang a man on false testimony of a murderer who wants his father killed. It puts a premium on murder for a son to swear away his father's life with a lie for money after six years silence."

German Flivvers Fail To Hurt Fords Abroad

Cheap Car, Made to Undersell Rivals, Won't Stand Up, Says Copenhagen Plant Head

George Carlson, manager of the Ford Automobile Company in Denmark, arrived yesterday from Copenhagen with the Scandinavian-American line trip to Olav on his way to the Ford headquarters in Detroit.

He said that the Germans threatened to make a cheap car that would undersell the low-priced American machines abroad, but their efforts in this direction were futile. The German product, he said, has a low-powered motor and the car itself will not stand up against any American rival.

Mr. Carlson will visit his home in Portland, Ore., before returning to Denmark. In Copenhagen the Ford company has just completed an assembling plant that will employ 2,000 men.

On the steamship Santa Teresa, of the Grace Line, which arrived yesterday from the west coast of South America, were Mrs. J. J. Morrow, Nelson Park, American Vice-Consul at La Paz, and Mrs. H. Henneberger and her daughter, Miss Vera Henneberger, of Los Angeles.

Doomed Slayer Gets Stay

Notice of Appeal Filed for Anthony Rabasovich

An order was served on Warden Lawes of Sing Sing yesterday in granting the execution of Anthony Rabasovich, of Brooklyn, which had been set for August 14. The notice of appeal automatically stayed the execution until the Court of Appeals reviews the evidence.

The prisoner was adjudged guilty of killing Patrolman John H. McCall with a shot from a revolver while the policeman was chasing him after he had held up Mrs. Anna Noyshet, of 266 Watkins Street, Brooklyn.

SEMI-ANNUAL CLEARANCE

SALE OF MEN'S

Made to Measure

SUITS

20% OFF ALL OUR

$30-$40-$50-$60

and $75 SUITS

T-O-D-A-Y

You're going to find a straight-forward 20% reduction—Every thorough Suits included. Tailored smartly and well—Those who come early will find the best "pickings."

HENRY A. RITCHIE & CO.

HUDSON TERMINAL BUILDING, at 30 Church St. cor. Dey St.

Westover to Pilot U. S. Balloon in Bennett Contest

Winner of National Race Chosen to Head the Army Entrant in International Event at Geneva, Aug. 6

From The Tribune's Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, July 10.—Major Oscar Westover, the army aviator, who won the national race, was selected today by the War Department to head the army team in the Gordon Bennett international balloon race to be held at Geneva under the auspices of the Aero Club of Switzerland, August 6.

With Major Westover will be First